a fuel cell and a secondary battery as electric power supplies of said motor;

a regulation unit that regulates supplies of electric power fed from said fuel cell and said secondary battery to said motor;

a control unit that controls operations of said electric power supplies and said power sources according to a driving state of said vehicle, wherein said control unit activates said fuel cell, so as to cause said fuel cell to output a preset electric power, even when it is not required to supply electric power from said fuel cell to said motor; and a power estimation decision unit that determines whether or not said vehicle is in a specific driving state that satisfies a preset condition, in which there is a little possibility of requirement of an increase in total power to be output from said power sources, wherein said control unit reduces the preset electric power when it is determined that said vehicle is in the specific driving state that satisfies the preset condition.

Claim 46. (Currently Amended) A vehicle in accordance with claim 45, said vehicle further comprising:

a transmission that changes speed of power output from a working power source according to the driving state of said vehicle and outputs the converted power to a drive shaft;
and an operation unit that specifies a working condition of said transmission, wherein the preset condition is that the working condition of said transmission is set to a non-driving state by said operation unit.

Claim 47. (Currently Amended) A vehicle in accordance with claim 45, said vehicle further comprising:

a braking decision unit that determines whether or not said vehicle is in the course of braking, wherein the preset condition is that said vehicle is being braked.
